

Medium at large on Halloween

ONE of Ireland's top spiritualist mediums is taking part in a special charity Halloween Ball at the Red Cow Hotel in aid of Our Lady's Hospital Crumlin.

Tom Colton will also be holding events across the Northside over the coming weeks as part of his 'Feel the Spirit Tour'.

Tom has chosen Our Lady's as his official charity after his daughter, Katie, was admitted to the hospital with meningitis on Halloween in 2007.

Thankfully, with the help of hospital staff, Katie has made a full recovery and Tom says the Halloween Charity ball on Saturday, October 31, is his way of saying thank you.

"The Crumlin Children's Hospital has had a close place in my heart ever since my daughter Katie was rushed there with meningitis," he said.

"Thankfully because of the quick reaction and hard work of the medical staff at the hospital Katie made a full recovery after spending time in intensive care and a week in hospital.

"This charity ball is a way of saying thank you to the hospital. The ball will be full fancy dress, no exceptions even for me!"

Tom's events are often described as "thought provoking, gripping and astounding."

He is well known for national TV and radio appearances and recently kicked off the 'Feel the Spirit Tour' with successful events in Cavan, Kildare and all over Munster last month.

The tour will take in 50 dates right across the country with events taking place at the Axis in Ballymun on Friday, October 30 and the Crowne Plaza Hotel in Blanchardstown on November 12.

Tom claims to be able to connect with the spirits of the bereaved and he believes that everyone can connect and communicate with spirits in the way he does.

"They just have to learn how, there is no special gift," he said.

"It is literally an ability everybody has."

Tom will be holding one-to-one reading sessions on the days of his events.

Participants are requested to bring a photograph of the bereaved loved one they would like to Tom to connect with, but there must be no writing on the photo and only the person they are looking to connect with must be in the picture.

All tickets for Halloween Ball are €50 and are available from the Red Cow Hotel. Proceeds go to the Children's Hospital Crumlin. For further details visit www.tomcolton.com or call 086-0234164.

● PSYCHIC: Tom Colton will be holding events across the Northside over the coming weeks